To

Whom it may concern,

Gustav Krowicki participated in a short-term academic project as part of a study group focused on innovation and design. The group completed its assigned task, and Gustav contributed to the effort with several ideas and observations. His involvement included design suggestions and summaries of fieldwork, which helped move the project forward.

While the collaboration was brief, Gustav showed some analytical ability and a willingness to engage with the material. His contributions were noted, and he was present throughout the process. Based on this experience, I acknowledge his participation and hope he continues to develop his skills in future endeavors.

Sincerely,

Lisbeth Gade Hamborg
